

The NRC Takes on Data Mining, Behavioral Surveillance, and Privacy

Susan Landau

Abstract— In mid 2000, The Wall Street Journal reported that the US Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) was developing a tool for wiretapping at an Internet service provider (ISP). Carnivore, later renamed DCS 1000, was built to capture communications content - email, pages, and so forth - or the transactional information in the communications of targeted suspects.

For the published version of record document, go to: <http://dx.doi.org/10.1109/MSP.2009>.

